Location

Cirencester,

Gloucestershire, UK

Often referred to as the Capital of the beautiful Cotswolds, Cirencester was the second largest town in Britain during Roman times. Today it is home to more than 18,000 people and a service centre for the thousands more who live in surrounding villages. Home to the oldest Polo park in the UK, this Royally connected town has fine eateries and shops and offers plenty of things to do in and around the surrounding areas.
